

Small pups, big trouble

Belle, protected by Nationwide® since 2022

Breed:
Jindo

Loves:
Making new friends

Warning:
Poor judgment

Even baby pets can get into grown-up-sized trouble, as Belle discovered when she greeted an unfriendly buck in her backyard.

Luckily, Belle had pet insurance to cover her eligible veterinary expenses, so when the bill came in, the buck stopped with Nationwide®.¹

“[Nationwide pet insurance helps] in two ways: Helping with emergencies, because emergency care is expensive, and making it very easy to file a claim—because it literally took me five minutes.”

– Rick C. and Euna K., Nationwide pet insurance members and pet parents of Belle

Nationwide® pet insurance: For pets like Belle, and for pet parents like you.

How pet insurance works

Nationwide pet insurance offers reimbursement for eligible veterinary bills—like Belle’s deer disaster!¹

Once your plan is in effect, it’s easy to use it for the veterinary care your pet needs.

- 1 Visit any veterinarian and pay for treatment
- 2 Submit a claim with your invoice
- 3 Get reimbursed for eligible expenses

New fur-ever friend checklist

- Look around your home from a pet’s eye view to remove anything potentially harmful
- Hook up your pet with a proper ID (collar with tags, microchip)
- Have food, bowls, bed, toys, travel gear (leash/crate/carrier) and potty supplies ready to use
- Get a complete veterinary checkup and vaccinations

Prepare for your new pet adventure with Nationwide pet insurance
